Mr. Editor:

I am sorry, indeed, to once more ask for space in The Bee to answer personal nor that I would be drawn a leading editorial that is reeking into a mess of this character. with filth published in a sheet that I am writing this letter in the hope sometimes appears in this city.

In spite of my ten years service as a policeman and my careful study of people and things, I am at a loss to understand the seeming antipathy of a certain class of Negroes for policemen. This personal attack on me is characteristic of a class of "newspaper editors," who are always "delving in the past" looking for news to elevate their sheets while the editors of journals are dealing in the present and planing for the future. But this editorial carries with it a most deplorable fact, a most discouraging fact, humiliating in the extreme, a fact which should cause all true hearted Negroes to stop and consider. Here we have two young Negroes, who, had they remained in their early environments I could excuse, but who have been among us long enough to have lost, cast aside, the ways and ideas of their class at thei Southern home. Before the war, this class, when, perchance or through spying, they observed some other Negro steal an apple, would hasten forthwith wo "Massa" with the news. This was taught them, but the reneration to which these two young Negroes belong has no earthly excuse for such proclivities. The idea does not seem to present itself to the minds of these young Megroes that their position is beneath that of a manly man. Call my superior officers attention to the fact that I am writing letters about them! It does seem to me that even the most meagre amount of brains would point out to these young Negroes how untenable their lying position willing when this lie is brought home to them. Well, well!
